Howard, past president of the Boston Women's Club and a prominent member of the Professional Woman's Club, will express her opinions on this important economic problem.

Friday's article will be written by Mrs. Axel A. Packard, director for Massachusetts in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and subsequent installments will follow, each written by a woman who is occupying a leading position in club or business activities.

In connection with the article a prize contest has been arranged in which business girls and employees of Boston retail stores, and students of Kinnear, Jackson, Wellesley, Simons, Radcliffe and Boston University College of Business Administration will participate.

A capital prize of $100, together with special prizes for each group, will be awarded for the best brief letters commenting on any ten of the articles. These letters are to be up to 500 words in length and should contain the name, address and college or business affiliation of the contestant. The ten copies of the prize letters are to be sent with the letters which should be mailed not later than December 15, to the "Savings Economics Edition," 5 Winchester, Boston.

WHEAT PLAN UP TO CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The House of Representatives today passed a bill to stabilize prices by buying up the surplus wheat crop—worth about $200,000,000—of the United States in millions of dollars to be placed in a fund for the stabilization of the coming season, it was learned today.

The program, in which probably 100,000,000 bushels of wheat have been purchased to date, and more of it taken off the market, will require an additional appropriation by Congress of around $100,000,000. This policy has the sanction of President Hoover.

Alexander L. Legie, chairman of the committee on agriculture, said to feel he can stabilize the price of wheat at around $1.75 a bushel.

MCCORMICK IN ADDRESS ON JOURNALISM

By DOROTHY ROE

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 19.—Journalism was the theme of an address delivered by Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, before a large body of Yale students in Harkness Hall yesterday.

The occasion was the first lecture under the foundation recently established by Paul Block, distinguished journalist and owner of a group of leading newspapers scattered throughout the country.

BLACK SPEARS
Col. McCormick's talk on the subject, "The Newspaper as a Business Enterprise," inaugurated the series of lectures to be delivered about one a month, by outstanding figures in the newspaper world, with the object of promoting among Yale men generally a better understanding of the press as a political and social force.

In this brief is the purpose of the foundation of Mr. Block, who is a personal friend of President Hoover and a power in American journalism.

Mr. Block, who was present at the launching of his philanthropic venture, outlined briefly his ambitions concerning it.

ROY LAY STUDENT
"I have always wanted to do something like this," he said, "my whole life and interest has been concerned with journalism, and my aim is to be able to make this contribution to my profession and to Yale, especially since my eldest son is now a student here, and my youngest son will enter the university soon."

Col. McCormick did not confine himself strictly to the subject of his address. He said: "There has been much hue and cry against the so-called yellow journals, the pink sheets, the tabloid—degenerative titles all."

"People of a sensitive turn of mind are horrified at the idea of a pink newspaper, because it has come to stand for a certain sportiveness of style. Yet it is an indispensible fact that type and pictures reproduce far better on pink paper than on white."

NO NEW TRICKS
"There is also a long standing prejudice against big headlines. Why should you object to big headlines any more than to big college buildings?"

"Newspapers have brought nothing new in literature or in art. Every greatest work of writing was known long before the invention of the printing press. The newspaper simply has increased the scope of distribution."

"How many people have been able to read the news of the American Revolution? Very few. The so-called yellow journal has performed a valuable service in stimulating social, religious and educational advancement among the masses, who could be reached by no other medium."

"The history of the newspaper has been a long series of emancipations. James Gordon Bennett was the first man who dared to print the proceedings of the New York Stock Exchange. He was assaulted on the streets as a result of his daring. But that was just another emancipation."

JOURNALISM PROFESSION
"As to the prescribed subject of my address, I am probably the least qualified man in America to speak to you on such a thing, because I do not consider the newspaper as a business enterprise."

"Journalism is a profession, an organized profession. But it is not a business in the sense that the dry goods store, the bank or the factory is a business. I would say that the newspaper plant is like the library of a lawyer or the instrument of a surgeon—a valuable thing when it is in the right hands."

Among the attending lecturers who addressed Yale students under the Block foundation are Walter Lippman of the New York World and Stanley Reiser of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency.

R. I. GUNMEN GET $8000

Providence, Nov. 19.—Just $8000 rather than if they had not volunteered, but $8000 poorer than if a misunderstanding about a payroll had not occurred, the five armed bandits with New York accents, who held up the U. P. food & drug store, were objects of police search today.

The five holdup men entered the office at 61 Webb st., and while one went into the manager's office, the others held up nearly 50 employees.

One of the holdup men went into the cashier's cage and ordered Miss Alice Harriman to put all the available cash in a canvas bag and hand it over. It totaled about $8000, part of which was in cash receipts just turned over by 15 wagon drivers.

Usually on Tuesday, an $8000 payroll is also delivered to the office, but due to a misunderstanding in instructions, the payroll was not delivered yesterday. After the holdup the five bandits fled in an auto.

Helping Hand Holds Out Happiness for Many

"God bless you for the wonderful work you are doing."

This statement was made in a letter written yesterday to the Boston Evening American Helping Hand Department by a woman who wanted the address of some poor unfortunate, preferably an elderly man, who needed an overcoat, raincoat, a suit and underwear.

The spirit of charity is alive in all the letters being received. Telephone responses arrive almost continuously. Although many appeals have been answered, many more are awaiting the attention of some kind reader.

"We have bread and water for breakfast, dinner and supper," writes one woman with a large family.

She asks not to be forgotten. These letters are painful. For lack of space very few are printed. Those who want to help should call Library 4900, Helping Hand Department. All cases should be investigated before help is given. Donations may be sent to the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, 5 Winthrop sq.

WHY YOUR GROCER SAYS

"Ask for the MUELLER package"

Your grocer knows that when you buy Mueller's Macaroni Products, you are buying guaranteed quality. He knows that back of the Mueller label is a reputation that has stood for over sixty-three years.

In the huge Mueller establishment, every precaution is taken to insure the utmost in purity and wholesomeness. Only the finest ingredients are used—a special blend of farina for Mueller's Macaroni and Spaghetti, and only selected fresh eggs and a choice blend of flour for Mueller's Egg Noodles.

Each Mueller Product is packaged and triple-sealed to keep it fresh, clean and moisture-proof up to the moment you open it. Contrast this with plain "bulk" macaroni and spaghetti which may have lain open in some box or barrel, exposed to dust and dirt.

When you buy Mueller's you know that you are buying the very finest the market affords—the finest ingredients, the most scientifically made and the most carefully packaged.

For the protection of your family, be sure to say MUELLER'S to your grocer. He has it or can get it for you.

PROBE OF RAIL OWNERSHIP DEMANDED

Investigation by the Public Utilities Commission of alleged control of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven by the Pennsylvania Railroad is asked in a resolution filed with the clerk of the Massachusetts House of Representatives today by Rep. Peter J. Fitzgerald of Boston.

The resolve aims at discovering in what extent the Pennsylvania Railroad has bought into the New England roads through the Penn Road Corporation.

It directs the Department of Public Utilities to investigate this alleged acquisition of stock, and to ascertain the amount of ownership in the consideration paid for stock acquired, the amount of securities issued on the basis of this stock and the returns from such investment.

During the last political campaign, ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston charged the administration of Boston Hill was asleep to the situation and should be secured for letting the Pennsylvania get as far as it could.

Horween Decides on Harvard Lineup for Yale Game

DEESES MAY BE MADE TO PLAY

While Harvard returns today hailed with delight the return of Charlie Devens to football tugs, the possibility of Devens figuring greatly against Yale is slight.

The fact is that Devens, though the Harvard line-up is good for only two or three plays at the most, if Horween sends Devens into the fray Saturday, it will not be to enable the Cantab halfback to win a victory.

And, as far as that goes, Charlie Cunningham, relief center in Brockton, who was injured early in the season, will also hobble onto the playing field at the Bowl, Saturday, but he may get his varsity letter.

Horween has definitely announced that he is through experimenting with lineups, and with only two more days of practice before the team starts for New Haven, Harvard's lineup is virtually decided.

Judging from the present lineup across the Charles, Horween plans to start Mowbray and O'Connell at wing, Richards and Koles tackling, Myerson and Trainor guards, and, of course, Ben Tignor at center.

Harvard's starting backfield will most likely consist of Wood, Quaker, Mays and Higley halfbacks and Bernie Hirsch back.

Mays to Start at Half in Place of Crickard

Mays is expected to start at left halfback in place of Crickard. The reasoning behind this is that should Mays crack up against Yale, powerful line-backers can fill the breach adequately, with Crickard's absence. Crickard would usually start, and by some accident have to leave the fray. Horween cannot be sure that Mays will last only two days to go. Horween has his entire variety squad of 36 players divided into three groups which will play on Saturday. Because of bad weather, the Harvard team are forced to work out in the Briggs Baseball cage.

After being criticized for Fred Knox's fictitious scrubs are the mainstay of the team in the second game playing the role of the "iron men."

The threat of rain, which caused a shiver throughout the length and breadth of Harvard yesterday seems to have passed as suddenly as it arose.

Crimson Eleven at Low Ebb Before Holy Cross Game

Dr. Tommy Richards declared that Harvard's physical condition reached a very low ebb just before the Holy Cross game.

The team has not yet come back entirely to the peak of condition, but Dr. Richards is inclined to believe that, with every workout for the next two days, the Cantabs should be as well as ever by game time.

The Harvard team will be confined to Briggs Baseball cage for the rest of the week, it is feared.

The varsity field where the team usually works out is a mud-bog, and there is not much hope of its being available for the next two days.

Harvard would prefer to have his charges run through practice on the mud, rather than the miniature affair inside the Briggs cage which cramps Harvard's style considerably.

Brown "Iron Men" May Play Again

President, R. L. Nov 18 (AP)—The U.S. Brown football team which played inter through one of the greatest seasons in the history of Brown football, to win national acclaim that season, may play again.

Football plans were developed here this afternoon to bring together the men all of whom are available, to play a charity game with some other suitable college group in New York, Boston or Providence early in December.

The Brown griders are scattered from Boston and Providence to Clinton, Ohio, and Cleveland, Ohio, all of whom are ready to play if arrangements can be made.

Six of the men are identified as coaching—namely, Randall, Towle and Connelley, and Smith, Lawrence and Hodge are identified with semi-pro teams in Greater Boston. Capt. Brode is in Canton, Connelley is in Cleveland, Kowalski is in business at Atlantic City, Mabel is in business in Boston after a coaching career that graduated from his graduation, and Farber is in business in this city.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston was in a cheerful mood when he popped into the Sporting Department today.

"Hoping fans are still talking about the Callahan-Puller fight at the Arena," said the veteran. "The fight in the New England light weight championship issue has got new life back into the fight scene."

"Callahan and Puller have produced some of the best fights in the city in a long time. They have been a lot of fun to watch."

"I have heard of each of their three engagements. I have heard the fans had the time of their lives."

"In this case, Jack Conway, I hope they are much the same. Eddie Shelton and Nate Norg were '3 years ago. No matter how often they fight, they are still the same. The reason for this was the fact they were action scrappers."

"Shelton and Norg also are some of the best fighters in the city. They are much the same. The reason for this was the fact they were action scrappers."

'DYING CURSE' CITED IN PHELAN CASE

Mother's Letter Denouncing His Sister May Have Had Effect, Doctor Says

A letter describing as "his mother's dying curse" was attributed to the cause of an alleged mental depression of George E. Phelan, late manager of the George R. White fund, whose will is being contested in Suffolk court.

A sister and two nieces charged mental and undue influence in making the will with George E. Phelan, his secretary, responsible for the will.

The partial battle on Phelan's mother, to whom he was devoted, was part of a deposition by Dr. Aram Fox Rhee, head of Rhee Institute at Rockbridge, where Phelan underwent treatment in 1928.

Dr. Rhee described the Phelan ailment as "hypochondriacal psychoneurosis," a condition commonly called "nervousness."

It may have been a progressive psychosis, a first depression based on a fundamental constitutional weakness, the deposition read.

"This might have been true also in the case of the mother's dying curse," a letter left by Mrs. Phelan to her son attacking the sister, Mrs. Virginia Lee Tewksbury.

Mrs. Tewksbury is one of the contestants in the will.

Gravel Fraser, 21, a cadet for Phelan seven years ago, testified that the late manager gave him sums from time to time and on one occasion remarked that he would "let H-I from Driscoll in the morning."

He told of a refusal a month before Phelan's death, when he asked for $20 to pay his wife's hospital bill.

Judge Arthur W. Dean entered the questioning of Fraser when the latter could not recall his wedding.

"You'd better remember before the next anniversary," the court said with a knowing smile.

The Boston Curb Exchange—Essentially a New Security Market

DURING the two years the Boston Curb Exchange has been affiliated with, and under the supervision of, the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange, it has been so thoroughly reorganized as to constitute an essentially new security market.

The Boston Grain and Flour Exchange traces its origin back more than seventy-five years, during which period it and its predecessors have stood for the highest standards of business dealing.

Membership in the Boston Curb Exchange is limited to members of the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange, and trading rules and regulations governing its operations are even more rigid than accepted practice demands.

Corporations are now afforded a sound and orderly market through which to secure a broad distribution and active trading for their shares hitherto closely held and unlisted.

Investors now have assurance that any enterprise whose shares are listed upon the Boston Curb Exchange has been subjected to rigid investigation, the Governing Committee of the Exchange fully realizing its obligation to the public.
